O.P.A. Drafts Report To President Which Might Be His Guide

One of Big Worries Is Holiday on Meat, Other Products

Washington, July 22 (AP)—O.P.A. drafted a report to President Truman today on "economic consequences" of the much-compromised Price Control Bill.

The report presumably is intended as a sign-or-veto guide to the chief executive. However, one official in a position to know said Mr. Truman already has indicated a decision to approve the measure, "reluctantly."

One of the biggest headaches for the administration is the likelihood of at least another four-week holiday from price ceilings on meats, dairy products, grains, cottonseed and soybeans and their food and feed products.

Final determination whether these items shall be brought back under control August 20 is left to a three-man board with power to overrule O.P.A. on both de-control and re-control decisions.

This board also will decide whether ceilings shall be re-imposed on poultry, eggs, food and feed products made from them, tobacco and its products and petroleum and its products.

Paul Porter, O.P.A. administrator, told newsmen "we are now working on an analysis of the bill's economic consequences for submission to President Truman." Porter would not say whether he would recommend another veto.

"Not Very Effective"

Chairman Spence (D-Ky.) of the House Banking Committee, leader in the administration's battle for a strong O.P.A. commented: "I don't think it is a very effective bill, but it is the best we can do. I believe the President will sign it as the last recourse."

Neither Spence nor his fellow Kentuckian, Senate Democratic Leader Barkley would say whether the new bill is "better or worse" than the one Mr. Truman vetoed three weeks ago.

The House-Senate conference committee which finally agreed on the compromise Saturday night after a five-day deadlock set another meeting for today to resolve differences of opinion on just what had been done.

The compromise measure will go to the House and Senate floors tomorrow for showdown votes on acceptance. There appeared to be little doubt, however, that both bodies would approve it.

In Detroit last night the executive board of the Independent Foreman's Association of America said it would call its 22,000 Detroit members out on strike unless price controls are restored by August 1.

Union President Robert H. Keys said such a strike would close more than 500 plants.

Major Provisions

Major provisions of the compromise O.P.A. Bill as it emerged from the Senat-House Committee include:

Revival of Price Control, in modified form, until June 30, 1947, with rent authority unchanged.

A new pricing formula for manufacturers, producers, processors, service and transportation inoustries saying prices must be high enough to return on the average the 1940 price plus cost increases since then. However, O.P.A. would have some discretionary power in applying the formula.

A requirement that price ceilings shall be lifted when supply of an item balances demand and normal competitive forces are restored. Determination when such items shall be decontrolled is placed with the three-man control board. Moreover Secretary of Agriculture Clinton P. Anderson is given the major voice in saying when agricultural products shall be repriced or decontrolled completely.

New Pearl Harbor Probe by Senate Will Be Re-opened

Brewster Says That Similar Effort Was Blocked by May; Wyman Is Key Figure

Washington, July 22 (AP)—A new but pin-pointed Pearl Harbor investigation hove into view today.

The Senate War Investigating Committee—taking its cue from the voluminous report assessing responsibility for the December 7, 1941, military debacle—decided to reopen its own inquiry into pre-war delays in fortifying the Pacific bastion.

Senator Browster (R-Me) said a similar effort two years ago was blocked by refusal of the House Military Committee headed by Rep. May (D-Ky) to release a key witness to the senate group.

Brewster is a member of both the Senate-House Committee which delved into blame behind Pearl Harbor and of the senate's special war investigating committee, now engrossed in an attempt to summon May for testimony concerning his relations with a midwestern munitions combine.

Central figure in the projected new inquiry is Col. Theodore Wyman, Jr., army district engineer in the Hawaiian department when the Japanese struck Pearl Harbor. Five month later Wyman was assigned to the Canol oil project in Canada. That was an undertaking which the Senate Committee, then headed by President Truman as a senator, declared in a December 23, 1943, report never should have been started.

Calls for Committees

Referring specifically to "the Wyman matter," the Pearl Harbor Committee in its final report Saturday called for appropriate Senate or House Committees to make a separate inquiry into delays in constructing Hawaiian defenses before the Japanese attack.

Brewster said Chairman Mead (D-NY) readily agreed to have the War Investigating Committee pick up the threat of its inquiry which the Maine senator said was stymied before by what he termed the "uncooperative attitude" of the May Committee.

The House Committee found in a report filed June 14, 1944, that "mismanagement" on Wyman's part contributed to delay in pre-war defense construction at Honolulu.

Both the House group and subsequently the Pearl Harbor Committee looked into Wyman's association with Hans Wilhelm Rohl, a German who became a naturalized American citizen three months before the Japanese attack. Rohl was part owner of Hawaiii Construction, defense work contractor on the islands.

The House Committee reported Wyman and Rohl were often together on the latter's yacht, the Germano. It cited testimony about "wild drinking parties" at which "dream-looking types of young girls paraded in and out all evening."

And it said that after Wyman's assignment to Canada as division engineer, the Rohl-Connolly Co. and associated firms obtained a $1,000,000 road contract to the Canol project.

U.S. to Make Protest on Activities

Government Is Irked Over Soviet Political Actions in Hungary, Is Statement

Method Is Source

Manner of Balloting in Hungary Is Not to Reds' Liking

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER
Associated Press Diplomatic Reporter

Washington, July 22 (AP)—Soviet political activities in Hungary led diplomats today to stress the struggle Secretary of State Byrnes still faces when he returns to Paris this week for more peace making.

This government is reported planning a sharp new protest to Moscow over what is considered here an oppression of Hungarian political freedoms. But the problem is considered typical of the conflict between Russia and the western powers which is the backdrop for the Paris peace conference.

The conference is scheduled to open a week from today. Aides expect Byrnes to leave Friday or Saturday. It was little more than a week ago that he returned from Paris after the Big-Four foreign ministers finished drafting the treaties for Hungary, Romania, Bulgaria, Italy and Finland which are to be acted on by the peace conference.

The texts of these documents have not been published. It is known, however, that they are intended to give much greater power into the hands of the native governments and thus restrict the rights of the occupation and control powers. This more or less fixed a deadline by which the Russians must wind up their most direct methods of consolidating Communist power in the Balkan states.

Officials here are not sure of the connection between this fact and what is going on in Hungary, but some suggest that it probably is very close.

Voting Isn't Liked

As a nation Hungary has voted in a manner less acceptable to Russia's political commissars than perhaps any other in eastern Europe.

In the balloting last November, the Communists polled 17 percent of the votes, Social Democrats 17 percent and the relatively middle-of-the road "Small Holders" Party 60 percent. Ever since, the Small Holders have been under heavy Communist pressure.

Earlier this year a "purge" re-

Arizona Search Is Made For Prospector Over Desert

Tucson, Ariz., July 22 (AP)—The location of a "lost" Spanish gold mine may be locked forever in the mind of Albert "Rabbit" Johnson, weather-beaten prospector, missing and believed dead in the desert wastes of central Arizona.

Since June 1, Sheriff E. W. Roach has directed a futile search for Johnson over rugged areas where surface temperatures sometimes exceed 150 degrees.

Quinton Ford, of Phoenix, reports Johnson had confided to him that he had found one of Arizona's fabulous "lost" mines. Johnson was one of dozens of men who believe the maps and weird tales of hidden wealth handed down from one generation to another until they have become part of western folklore.

Some of them seek a mine where, according to legend, a rusty revolver marks the site of a wide vein of almost pure gold. It was long before Johnson's time when a prospector, lost in one of the state's frequent sandstorms, took shelter in a cave at the base of a hill. Idly picking at the rock as he sat out the storm, he discovered that the rock was unbelievably rich ore.

His water was almost gone as the wind died, but he stuffed his pockets with ore, left his gun as a claim-marker, and tried to find his way to civilization. When found he was dying from thirst and was beyond speaking. With his samples was a note giving a rough description of the hill of gold. Many have tried, but none have found the revolver or the mine.

There are many other "lost" mines, and perhaps Albert "Rabbit" Johnson actually found one. But unless Sheriff Roach's search is more successful than it has been to date, the world will never know.

Revolutionaries Promise to Restore Civil Liberties to Bolivia; President Is Slain; Utility Service Is Back

Situation in La Paz Is Still Confused; Report Says 2,000 Killed, Wounded

Election Promised

New Rulers Say They Will Institute Free Election

La Paz, Bolovia, July 22 (AP)—Revolutionary leaders promised immediate restoration of civil liberties today after seizing the government in a bloody four-day uprising climaxed by the assassination yesterday of President Gualberto Villarroel.

Street fighting, in which approximately 2,000 persons were reported killed or wounded, abated after the revolutionists paraded through La Paz with the battered, semi-nude body of the president draped over an army tank.

Earlier, the president's body had been hanged from a lamppost in front of his palace. At the conclusion of the parade, the body was returned to the same lamppost and strung up along with the bodies of three of his trusted subalterns.

Crowds passed silently by the improvised gallows in the shadow of the bullet-pocked palace, where the new government met to name temporary officials and to set in motion machinery for what it described as a democratic general election.

Electric and telephone service, disrupted for the last several days, was restored as the city began to return to normal.

Many members of Villarroel's military regime perished with their leader, but most of the casualties in the street fighting were revolutionists.

The situation was still confused today as the leaders of the revolt attempted to restore order after one of the most chaotic days in the history of this country, where revolutions are taken almost as a matter of course.

Some Manage to Escape

Some members of the army and a few of Villarroel's lieutenants managed to escape the angry civilian mobs and flee to the hills.

The new government is composed of university professors and students, labor union groups and several prominent figures including the dean of the La Paz superior court.

First official act of the revolutionary regime, which calls itself the "Institutional Government," was to issue a communique calling for national unity and resoration of "popular liberties," which were suspended under Villarroel's "strong man" rule.

The communique also said that all political prisoners would be freed and that all political exiles would be welcomed back in Bolivia to "collaborate in the restoration of democratic liberties and guarantees."

Reports differed as to the manner in which Villarroel met his death. One source said that when crowds surged into the presidential palace, slaying guards and soldiers who attempted to turn them back, they found Villarroel hiding in the attic. Another report said the president was wounded when he tried to escape through the palace corridors.

At any event, the president was captured within the palace and then—either dead or alive—was hurled from a balcony to a mob in the street below.

The crowd tore his uniform into shreds and strung him up on a high lamppost. Someone draped a sheet over his naked body. His official picture, a photograph, was pinned to the sheet. One of his military boots was placed grotesquely under his left arm.

Then Villarroel's body was cut down, placed atop the tank and paraded through the streets as proof that his regime had toppled. Civilians, forming military ranks, marched through the city shouting their support of the revolution.

Luis Uria, undersecretary of the presidency, was among those hanged in front of the presidential palace. Roberto Hinchin, director general of propaganda, was killed. Police Captain Humberto Carrasco was arrested. Many of Villafroel's supporters took refuge in embassies.

The current revolution began July 13, when a student was killed during a demonstration in support of teachers' demands for higher pay. The government then prohibited all demonstrations, and a general strike was called in protest of this action.

Fifty persons were killed and 250 wounded last Thursday when police fired on a crowd of demonstrators.

Realizing that his regime was wabbling, Villarroel reorganized his cabinet Saturday, forming an all-military body. When this failed to halt the revolution, he resigned yesterday morning and prepared to flee the country in his private airplane.

Chinese Communists Claim Capture of 12,000 Soldiers

Russia Accuses U.S. Of Fostering Civil Warfare in China

Thus America Would Get Economic, Political Dominance, Red Radio Says

London, July 22 (AP)—The Moscow radio accused America today of fostering civil war in China in order to assure economic and political dominance in the Far East, and asserted:

"The Soviet public cannot be indifferent to America's policy in China."

Quoting from a lengthy review on American policy in China by the magazine New Times, the broadcast declared:

"The United States looks upon its economic predominance in China as a legitimate prize of war and upon China as its new economic boundary."

The review said events in China made it "ever more evident that the principal factor favoring fomentation of civil war is the support given by the United States to reactionary circles in the Kouimintang in their fight against the democratic movement."

The broadcast charged that America's present policy in China "differs radicaly from that pursued by the Roosevelt administration" and declared that "the Soviet public cannot be indifferent to America's policy in China."

Madame Sun Declares Reactionaries Plan to Get U. S., Reds in Trouble

Nanking, July 22 (AP)—Chinese Communists claimed a resounding victory today with the capture of 12,000 troops, threatening the whole government position on the vital coastal plain, only 60 miles east of Nanking.

Communist spokesman Wang Ping-Nan asserted 6,000 of the troops "threw down their arms in protest to the civil war" after they were ordered to attack Communist lines near Taihing, 60 miles east of Nanking.

Captured in the battle, Wang added, was Gen. Wang Tieh-Han. He said the captured general commanded the Government's 49th Army.

But a government army spokesman declared Communist Wang's claims were "completely fabricated propaganda." The spokesman said telephone and telegraph messages were received from the forces Wang claimed had surrendered and that Gen. Wang Tieh-Han had telephoned his command is intact.

The bulk of the 26th and 79th Divisions of General Wang's Army followed him into captivity, the Communist spokesman said.

The spokesman asserted the Communists were holding a line about 35 miles north of the Yangtze river near Jukao, which is 100 miles east of Nanking and the same distance northwest of Shanghai.

"They will not attempt to advance toward the Yangtze," Wang said, "although fighting in that area ended with the collapse of the 49th Army."

The Government's Central News Agency alleged, however, that the Communists already were embarked on a "full-blown offensive" in this general area and would use gains there for "springboards to jump onto Nanking and Shanghai."

Calls It 'Smoke Screen'

Wang replied that this was only a "smoke screen" for a government attempt to wipe out Communist positions north of the Yangtze. He charged that 14 government armies totaling 400,000 men were on the offensive there.

Neutral observers said Communist forces in this region, which embraces the northern part of the seaboard province of Kiangsu, were not strong enough to threaten either Nanking or Shanghai seriously.

Nevertheless, this Chinese capital took on a martial air. A battalion of government infantry marched through the street in full battle dress Sunday morning.

Dr. John Leighton Stuart, new U. S. ambassador to China, said on his return from presenting his credentials to Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek at the summer capital of Kuling that he still saw hope of peace.

(In Tokyo today, authoritative but unidentified sources said that aerial fighting on a comparatively large scale can be expected in China if all-out warfare comes.

(American sources in position to know said the Chinese Central Government is "fairly well equipped" with American-supplied fighter, attack bombers and medium bombers; also with parts, bombs, ammunition and gasoline.

(Reports reaching Tokyo were that the Chinese Communists have "several hundred" Japanese fighter and light bomber planes and considerable quantities of bombs and gasoline, all taken from Japan's Kwantung army in Manchuria.)

Sees War Promotion

Shanghai, July 22 (AP)—Madame Sun Yat-Sen, widow of the founder of the Chinese Republic and sister-in-law of its present leader, Chiang Kai-Shek, said today in a rare interview that a desire to promote war between the United States and Russia motivates Kuomintang (Government Party) reactionaries seeking to stir up civil war.

Inactive in politics for years, she came out of semi-retirement to urge immediate establishment of a coalition government in the country now headed by her brother-in-law and to appeal to the United States to foster such a move by cutting off all military supplies to China.

Madam Sun said that Kuomintang reactionaries were fostering a civil war they can't win "because they hope civil conflict in China will incite war between America and the U.S.S.R. and thus at last crush Chinese Communists."

Craft's Market Is Sold to Garment Firm of New York

R. E. Craft, Grocer for 31 Years Will Go Into Appliance, Paint Business

Raymond E. Craft, proprietor of Craft's Super Market at 59-61 O'Neil street, announced today that he has sold the building to a large New York concern which will use the entire structure for the manufacture of garments. At this time, he stated, the name of the new owners could not be divulged.

Mr. Craft, who has been in the grocery business for 31 years, and opened the second super-market in the east when the self-service stores were just becoming popular, said he would retire from the grocery business to give his entire attention to a rapidly growing electrical appliance, paint business and other lines which he will add. An announcement will be made later of the new location where this appliance business will be carried on.

Will Sell Stock

The grocery department, which has been conducted at its present location since 1938, will be liquidated and the fixtures sold. Mr. Craft said he would turn over immediately the large rear portion of the super-market to the new owners but would retain the front portion of the building for the purpose of liquidating the grocery stock. It is his intention to retain this front section of the building for the purpose of disposing of the grocery stocks now on hand and for the operation of the meat, dairy, fruit and vegetable departments which will continue to be operated until late fall.

Mr. Craft said he was retiring from the grocery business to devote his entire time to the sale

Russia Stands Firm on Veto Plan Now in Use by Council

New York, July 22 (AP)—Battle lines in the United Nations over the veto took more definite shape today with a reliable report in Soviet circles that Russia is standing firm on the veto system as it is presently constituted.

Soviet circles reported that it is the firm, definite and final conviction of the Russian government that the veto should remain unchanged. It was said further that no matter how many speeches are make on the question in the General Assembly or however the veto is attacked, the Soviet government would remain firm for the present set-up.

This was the first Russian reaction on the veto question after the broadcast last Monday by Dr. Herbert V. Evatt, Australian foreign minister and United Nations delegate, in which he criticized the veto.

Evatt said that Australia has formerly requested the United Nations to put the veto issue on the agenda of the General Assembly meeting which begins at the old World's Fair site here September 23.

Meanwhile, both the United Nations Security Council and members of the U. N. Atomic Energy Commission expected to deliberate important issues during the coming week.

The commission's Committee No. 2 will hold a closed session Wednesday and its working committee is expected to meet later in the week.

The Security Council is scheduled to meet Wednesday. One question it must take up is that of new members of the United

George White Is Out on Bail as Probe Continues

Theatrical Producer Held on Suspicion He Caused Death of Two. Left Scene

San Diego, Calif., July 22 (AP)—George White, 52, Hollywood and New York theatrical producer of "Scandals" girl shows, was free on bail here today after his arrest on charges of suspicion of causing the traffic deaths of a newlywed pair and failing to stop and give aid.

He was accused by State Traffic Patrol Officer Luther M. Hake in the county jail booking of negligent homicide and felonious failure to stop his borrowed automobile.

White denied the charges last night at his hotel, telling newsmen that "the first I knew of the accident was when a motorcycle cop stopped me just outside of San Diego" Saturday night.

He was arrested ten miles from where Claude McLester Lee, 42, was killed and his bride, Leona Ann Osborne Lee, 18, bride of a few hours, was injured critically on a highway Saturday night.

Hake reported the newlyweds were crossing the highway on foot outside the pedestrian lane. He said he and Officer H. J. McCreary found blood on White's car, which had a smashed left fender and headlight.

White told interviewers that the fender and headlight were damaged at the Hollywood Park race track Saturday.

The producer was released on $2,000 bail yesterday after spending the night in jail.

Dewey Inquiry Is Declared 'Fraud'

New York, July 22 (AP)—Dorothy Langston, executive secretary of the New York Committee for Justice in Freeport, declared yesterday that the governor's inquiry into the fatal shooting of two negro brothers in the Long Island community was "an unvarnished fraud."

She demanded in a letter to Lawrence S. Greenbaum, appointed by Gov. Dewey to conduct the inquiry, that Stanley Faulkner, committee attorney, be permitted to examine witnesses.

She said the investigation into the shooting of Charles and Alonso Ferguson was "unfair, unjust and not conducive to establishing the truth."

Port Ewen Woman Gives Her Version Of July 10 Tragedy

In a statement to The Freeman today Mrs. Joseph Fabysack, of Port Ewen, survivor of a double drowning on Wednesday, July 10, at Tinkers Beach, Port Ewen, said that details of the drowning were inaccurate.

According to Mrs. Fabysack, who was in the canoe with Nicholas Auringer and John Hines at the time of the accident, Mr. Hines did not rock the canoe. He did stand up in the canoe just as it was about to make a turn.

Mrs. Fabysack says that she could not account for Hines' sudden action in standing up in the canoe, but that she did not consider it a foolish prank. The canoe tipped over as soon as Hines stood up and the occupants were thrown into the water.

Mrs. Fabysack also clarified the circumstances surrounding the actual drowning. She told The Freeman that when the three occupants were thrown into the water, she and Auringer pleaded with Hines to grab the canoe which was then floating just a few feet from him.

Hines in his panic disregarded the frantic pleas of his companions and got a death grip on Auringer. Mrs. Fabysack says she remained in the vicinity until Auringer and Hines had gone down for the third time and then struck out for the shoreline.

HIGHLAND

Highland, July 22—In the meeting of the Lions Club July 15 at Blossom Inn the members went on record as favoring a more local airport. Webster Langdon and John F. Wadlin are a committee to draw up resolutions favoring the growth of industrial and commercial enterprises of that nature in the Mid-Hudson region and the need of an airport centrally located and designated as a stop for one or more major airlines with planes north and south or east and west bound. The government has declared the field at Hackensack as surplus property and this could be developed for such purposes. The question of the return of the regatta was talked over and Walter R. Seaman, LeGrand Haviland, Jr., and Martin Dayton were appointed a committee to learn whether the event could not be returned next year.

Pennsylvanians Are Out to Get Coyotes

Harrisburgh, Pa., July 22 (AP)—A new type of game for the Keystone state, coyotes, is being sought by hunters in northeastern Pennsylvania today.

H. E. Higbee, of Grove City, senior investigator for the dog law enforcement division of the Bureau of Animal Industry, reported recent catches have included one female coyote shot, one seriously wounded and two trapped.

Thirty-six lambs recently were killed by coyotes in Bradford county and another farmer in Wyoming county reported a loss of 27 sheep.

Coyotes are not common in Pennsylvania. One explanation for their appearance was that motorists touring in the west acquired several baby coyotes as pets and later abandoned them in the Keystone state.

Natives Turn Farmer

Australia's efforts to train young men and women natives as farmers and help them settle on the land has been successful in Queensland, which has the only aboriginal-owned dairy farm in Australia, Brisbane reports. Natives of the aboriginal station near Murgon bought a 700-acre farm from their earnings and are making it pay. They sell cream to a butter plant, and vegetables.

Company Reports Plans Two-way Radios for Autos

New York, July 22 (AP)—Plans for inauguration of two-way radiotelephone service for motor vehicles in New York state were made public today by the New York Telephone Company.

The company said present plans call for service to be made available in the New York city area by late summer or early fall and for an intercity network extending to Albany and Buffalo early next year. Radio telephone stations along the New York-Boston highway are scheduled to be put in operation in November.

Construction of equipment for the new service will begin in August and mobile service operators now are in training, although the company is waiting permission from the Federal Communications Commission to establish the service.

Three classes of service are planned by the company; a general two-way telephone service enabling connections to be made between vehicles and regular telephones; a two-way dispatch service between a customer's office and his own mobile units only, and a one-way signaling service to mobile units. Rates have not yet been definitely determined.

The first service to be put in operation will cover an area including greater New York, Nassau county, lower Westchester county and nearby New Jersey. Two transmitters will be used, one in New York and another in Mount Vernon.

For inter-city service transmitters will be located in or near New York city, White Plains, Poughkeepsie, Albany, Fonda, Utica, Syracuse, Rochester and Buffalo.

Bikini A-Bomb Test Plans to Be Finished by Navy

Adverse Weather Might Halt Underwater Explosion, Blandy Declares

Aboard U.S.S. Mt. McKinley, July 22 (AP)—Preparations for the underwater test of the Atomic bomb will be completed tomorrow (Monday, U. S. Time) when target submarines are submerged in Bikini lagoon and an electronics rehearsal is staged.

As preparations went ahead, Vice Adm. W. H. P. Blandy, Atom test commander, observed that the bursting of the world's fifth atomic bomb might be delayed at least a week because of adverse weather.

Blandy added, however, that meteorologists hoped a high pressure area would shove an intertropical front southward and bring clear weather to the area.

The test now is scheduled for Thursday morning, Bikini time (Wednesday afternoon, U. S. time).

Six submarines will be submerged tomorrow at a depth of 90 feet. Actual submerging operations began today but it will take until tomorrow to complete.

Two other submarines — the bomb-battered Skate and the Parche—wil be anchored on the surface.

Sub commanders agreed that the submerged craft, will stand little chance of surviving the terrific underwater blast, since they will be closest to the center of detonation.

Heavy hulled submarines, besides the Skate and Parche, are the Dentuda, Pilotfish and Apogon. Light hull craft include the Skipjack, Tuna and Searaven.

Blandy warned again today that damage to ships in the forthcoming test will be "unspectacular" and not so impressive to the lay observer as were the battered and burning ships in the lagoon after the aerial explosion July 1.

The air burst damaged ships' superstructures while damage done in the second test will be underwater.

Animals Suffer

Bikini Lagoon, July 22 (AP)—Nearly 25 per cent of the animals placed aboard ships in the first Atomic bomb test at Bikini were killed outright or died later from exposure to lethal rays, a member of Vice Adm. William H. P. Blandy's staff revealed today.

In addition, about one-third of the animals still living are critically ill.

Capt. R. H. Draeger of Blandy's staff told newsmen it would be months, before the full story of what happened to the animals could be told. He said the animals exposed July 1 suffered "no real pain."

Studies have disclosed, he continued, that if the ships had been manned by crews, most of the seamen would have survived and would have been handling ships not put out of action.

Experts Consider Plan to Divide Palestine's Areas

London, July 22 (AP)—British and American experts have been holding policy discussions here for more than a week were reported today to be seriously considering a plan to divide Palestine into separate Arab and Jewish communities with a central administration.

British sources pointed out that such a solution would jibe with the British-American inquiry Commission's recommendation that Palestine be neither an Arab nor a Jewish state.

The Sunday Times said the plan under consideration was along the lines of the proposed settlement of the Indian problem, calling for a federation of states with a central administration "representing both sides and responsible for matters of joint concern."

Killer of Poles Is Hanged; 15,000 Witness Execution

Poznan, Poland, July 22 (AP)—Arthur Greiser, who sent thousands of Poles to Nazi death camps in the days of his ascendancy as Gauleiter of Poznan province, went to the gallows in prayerful terror yesterday while 15,000 persons, many of whom he had persecuted, watched silently in Citadel Palace.

Although his neck was broken, Greiser's body continued to writhe for seven minutes before physicians pronounced him dead.

The 49-year-old Greiser, who as president of the pre-war Gdansk (Danzig) senate, collaborated in the Nazi invasion of Poland.

An appeal for clemency, which the official Polish press agency asserted had been supported by the Vatican, was refused by President Boleslaw Bieurt.

(In Vatican City, a responsible source denied that the Pope had intervened in an effort to stay Greiser's execution.)

SHELTERED CHILDREN

Children of the poor, ill-nourished and ill-housed, always attract the sympathy of well-to-do people. The sad children of war tear the hearts of all who learn about their sufferings. But children sheltered too much from hard realities in comfortable homes are underprivileged also.

Dr. Karl Bowman of the University of California Medical School puts in a plea for acquainting all children early with the harsh facts they will later meet. He says:

"Our society has often sheltered the child under the misguided notion that the longer he can be prevented from knowing the unpleasant truths of the world, the better for him and for society. But we know now that the longer we delay meeting difficult problems the harder it is to deal with them. If certain situations are handled easily and naturally during childhood, the individual adjusts to them without much difficulty. If kept from the knowledge of these situations until he has grown up and is forced to deal with them, the struggle may be too much for him.

"The problem is not how we can shelter children, but how we can develop robust personalities so they themselves can deal with difficulties and dangers as they grow up.

Any American who spends some time in a community reared the pioneering stage with his own, is likely to perceive this truth. The young in such hard-living regions in Canada or our own country learn early to adapt themselves to difficulties. They laugh at hardships which would baffle or defeat young people of their own age in cities.

Learning while young that this is a hard world, but that human beings can conquer fate, poverty and the wilderness is one of the best means for making later life seem easy.

HOME MOVIES

The time-hallowed snapshot album has a formidable rival in the amateur-operated movie camera. Now that film is easier to obtain, vacationers all over the country are busily storing up entertainment for next winter's long evenings and for many sessions in the years to come.

The camera whirs and clicks, recording in nature's own colors the happy activities of summer hours. It shows the two-year-old's first spluttering, floundering attempts to swim. The seven-year-old is caught learning to row the flat-bottomed skiff, his bare brown feet firmly braced, his round freckled face puckered in a frown of concentration. Near the shore the dark-haired four-year-old, in a scrap of blue bathing suit, persistently tries to scoop up minnows in her sand pail. The watchful eye of the camera sees father, in his ancient fishing pants and battered sun hat, disgustedly throwing a small one back in the water.

All these pictures, with their background of bright sky and blue water, their color and motion, store up the fleeting loveliness of summer days for years to come.

POLIO SEASON

Infantile paralysis is here again. Summer is the season when it takes hold, and new cases have been reported in many sections of the country.

Parents can be on the alert for the most usual symptoms—fever, headache, cold, upset stomach. Physicians make these recommendations: keep children under healthful routine with regular meals and sleep and no undue excitement; avoid swimming unless water is known to be clean; check purity of milk and drinking water; wash raw fruits and vegetables before eating.

At the first suspicion that a child is not well, it is advisable to have a doctor take a look immediately.

Why fiddle around with theoretical things like atomic control, when we can't even regulate the weather?

Human deterioration is spreading to the animals. A picture in the paper the other day showed pet crows so lazy that they would starve to death with food right before their eyes, if tender-hearted people didn't push the food down their throats.

'These Days'

P.A.C. SANS HILLMAN

The Political Action Committee was organized as a pressure upon the two major political parties with the object of forcing them to accept the program of a comparatively small but closely-knit, well-financed, articulate group of labor leaders and intellectuals who had heretofore failed to influence either public opinion or legislation. The genius of this organization was Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, an independent union that had helped to create the C.I.O. The backbone consisted of the Communist party and the Left Wing group of the C.I.O.

The P.A.C. had the support of the administration in Washington as long as Franklin Roosevelt was President. Sidney Hillman and Mr. Roosevelt were more than close friends; they were political allies, closely associated in all their enterprises. Mr. Roosevelt required a political mechanism to keep the Big City Democrats in line. P.A.C. put a terrific pressure upon them in such cities as New York, Chicago, Pittsburgh, Los Angeles and San Francisco. Whatever Roosevelt required, Hillman provided; whatever Hillman required to strengthen his prestige with his own group, Roosevelt did.

The power of P.A.C. was generated by Sidney Hillman. He was its organizing genius and intellectual form. And his methods were strictly European. Many Europeans came to this country in early childhood or youth and going through our schools and colleges or by association became thoroughly assimilated. They took on American characteristics so readily that their mental processes became typical of the country. In fact, often in their enthusiasms, they were the most ardent fighters for the American constitutional system: To mention but two examples, there was Joseph Pulitzer and Carl Schurz.

This was never true of Sidney Hillman. He remained an Eastern European in thought and expression. He never recognized, for instance, the essential American characteristics of the sovereign position of the individual in American life. His concept was the organization of men and women into groups and categories, to be moved around on the checker-board of the higher politics which he practised.

Never a Communist, Hillman got along with them better than any other non-Communist. As a matter of fact, his strength over John L. Lewis and Phil Murray in the C.I.O. was his ability to manage Communists. Lewis became their prisoner, from which umbrageous position he managed to escape. Murray has been in the unfortunate position of disliking Communists and not knowing how to rid himself of them. Hillman, with rare astuteness and guile, held the Communists in line. He provided them with a respectable front; they compromised with him on face-saving inessentials.

But this must be remembered: The American Communist party is Soviet Russian Fifth Column. It obeys instructions. It has never, in the nearly three decades of its existence, given one sign of independence from Russian control. Therefore, it is obvious that the support of Hillman within the P.A.C. and the C.I.O. by the Communists was by order and in accordance with a deal. It never could have happened in any other way.

The death of Hillman leaves P.A.C. with uneven leadership. Phil Murray might assume the front, but Murray is an honest, patriotic and moral man and it is doubtful that he can long survive the trials of such leadership without Hillman's assistance. Vito Marcantonio and Fiorello La Guardia lack the qualities of leadership and worst of all, they lack personalities that are attractive to Americans. Hugh De Lacy is too tied up with Communist associations in the past and Harry Bridges, shrewd, competent, wise in the ways of this country, has a bad press. In that artists, writers, etc., organization which Harold Ickes and Jimmy Roosevelt head, there may be some leadership for the P.A.C., but its Communists are bound to distrust bourgeois intellectuals and political opportunists. As a matter of inevitable fact, the Communists are now stronger in P.A.C. than they were before Hillman died. It is their organization now.

P.A.C., lacking Hillman's dynamism, cannot be the same organization. Dying since Roosevelt's demise, Hillman gave it a new lease on life in its Southern campaign. It requires a spark of life and neither Roosevelt nor Hillman are around.

WATCHING THE DAMAGED HEART

I watched an eminent heart specialist examine a close relative of mine, who had been worrying about his heart. The specialist asked several questions, gave him a thorough physical examination, had an X-ray film made of the size and position of the heart, and his assistant made an electrocardiogram. After the patient was dressed he was told to sit down and the specialist asked about his home, its location, how far he walked in reaching his home and place of business, what other exercise he took. He then advised him that while he had a heart murmur and the heart had been damaged from his tonsil infection before their removal, there was no cause for worry. He pointed out that if he could walk the distance mentioned and on that particular street without getting out of breath or tired he had a good working heart. Turning to me he said "I am more interested in the [illegible] of the heart than what I find from the X-rays and the electrocardiogram."

This does not mean that the X-rays and the electrocardiograph should not be used in a heart examination what it does mean is pointed out by another eminent heart specialist, Dr. Frederick A. Willius, of the Mayo Clinic in the Journal of the American Medical Association who states that "while present day medical teaching must stress the value and importance of the various diagnostic procedures (X-rays, electrocardiograph) one is left to wonder whether the mechanical methods of detecting heart disease are receiving over-emphasis at the expense of time-tested methods of physical diagnosis."

In other words our experienced heart specialists believe that any and every instrument or method that will help in estimating the damage that has occurred to the heart should be used, the most important point is "the taking of a careful clinical history followed by a thorough and complete physical examination." All other procedures such as use of X-rays and electrocardiograph are simply helps or aids.

If then, your physician after careful questioning and physical examination, states that your heart can stand a certain amount of work, you should follow his advice as to exercise and eating.

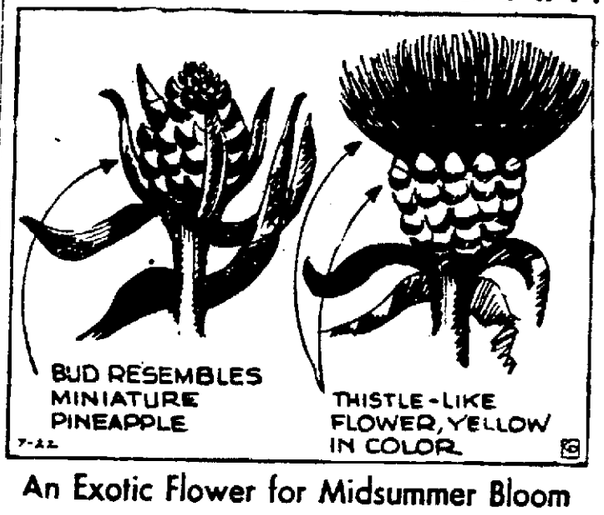
TODAY'S GARDEN-GRAPH



An Exotic Flower for Midsummer Bloom

By DEAN HALLIDAY

Released by Central Press Association

CENTAUREA are showy annual and perennial herbs largely European in origin. These attractive, exotic-appearing plants are useful in sunny borders and for use as cut flowers. The plants are hardy and will thrive in almost any ordinary good soil. They also are remarkably resistant to disease.

The variety Centaurea macrocephala is especially showy having large thistle-like golden yellow flowers, as illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph. The buds themselves can be used for artistic flower arrangements indoors.

Centaurea provides wanted midsummer flowers, blooming as it does in July and August. The plants grow to be 3 feet or more in height.

The plants can be transplanted in either spring or autumn. They should be set about 8 inches apart and look best when planted in groups of three. They will require dividing and replanting every three years.

Centaurea americana, or Basket-flower, is an annual variety which grows to a height of 6 feet. It bears solitary thistle-like flowers generally of rose or fleeh color often 5 inches across.

Among the perennial varieties is Centaurea cineraria, commonly known as Dusty Miller. It grows 2 feet in height with woolly, white foliage. Its large flowers are yellow or purple in color.

Strategic Bombing Survey Tells Why U. S. Was Defeated at Pearl Harbor in 1941

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, July 22—With all due respect to the fine work of the Congressional Committee which investigated the Pearl Harbor disaster, the more important of the reports which were made public over the week-end was the remarkable document issued by the U. S. Strategic Bombing Survey.

This survey tells really why we were defeated at Pearl Harbor and why it took nearly four years to beat Japan, and it tells the American people some unpleasant truths which even today are being ignored. It is a story of miscalculation on the importance of air power.

This correspondent last week commented on a report by this same strategic bombing survey and said it was biased because it did not cover Navy operations. It turns out that the mimeographed super-condensation which was issued by the White House last week was not the final summary report by the survey committee at all but was, in fact, only a segment. Unfortunately, the White House did not reveal the important fact that the brief report was only the forerunner of the major report that now has been issued.

The final report is not only impartial, but it is comprehensive and it gives due credit to all branches of our armed services. It is by far the most valuable document issued to date on the Pacific war. It points out, first of all, that whereas Japan had ten aircraft carriers at the outbreak of the war and we had seven, there were only four of ours in the Pacific at the time of Pearl Harbor. It adds significantly:

"Ninety P-40's and 35 B-17's in the Philippines could not be expected to check the Japanese push southward. . . .

"One thousand planes in the Philippines, at least equal in performance to the best then available to the Japanese, including types effective against shipping, well-manned, equipped and supplied, and dispersed on some 50 airfields, would have seriously impeded the original Japanese advance if knowledge of their existence had not entirely dissuaded the Japanese from making the attempt.

"The loss of relatively antiquated battleships at Pearl Harbor had little effect on the Navy's combat capabilities at that time, while the addition of a few carriers would have enormously increased its capabilities. Larger overall appropriations to the armed forces, beginning at the time of Japanese occupation of Manchuria when the threat to peace in the Far East became evident, might have made war unnecessary and would have paid for itself many times over in reduced casualties and expenditures had war still been unavoidable."

The survey tells of the splendid work of the aircraft carriers of the Navy, and might have included some mention of the supporting Navy task forces which protected the carriers but it does give some hitherto unpublished data on the accuracy of Navy planes versus Army planes. It appears that the low-level flying of the carrier planes had a record of 50 per cent accuracy within 250 feet while the high-altitude flying of Army bombers resulted in 10 per cent of the bombs dropped hitting the target areas. A revised program subsequent to March, 1945, brought this latter record up to 35 to 40 per cent within 1,000 feet of the aiming point in daylight attacks from 20,000 feet or lower.

The report makes some excellent recommendations for the future and expresses in statesmanlike terms some observations about the much discussed merger, now shelved until the next session of Congress. The report advocates "unity of command" but says this "should, however, decentralize administrative burdens and permit specialized training and the free development of the component forces, even at the risk of some duplication."

Even more pertinent is the recommendation for a separate air force within a department of common defense but with primary responsibility only "for passive and active defense against long-range attack on our cities. . . . For strategic attack, whether by airplane or guided missile; and for all air units other than carrier air and such land-based air units as can be more effective as component parts of the Army or Navy."

Here is a definition which can be easily understood and which should commend itself to all who are trying to be objective and impartial in the controversy between the armed services as to the proper allocation of air power.

We Can't Plow Germany Under

Russia will have stirred up this potentially useful neighboring country, giving added momentum to the Communist movement there.

We had a better chance to put over something of this kind because German people hated and feared Communism and Russia. Let us hope they still do, and that we will cut out our anaemic diplomacy in time to hold them out of the Communist camp. This is the important thing. Truman and Byrnes have been trying to prevent the next war by making a crushed nation weaker instead of seeing that that nation does not slip into the sphere of the only country which endangers future peace.

If Russia can, she will rearm Germany and use its military machine in furthering "world revolution."

This latest diplomatic coup by the Russians highlights a series of efforts which have turned out badly for us. Molotov let Byrnes try for months to get the Potsdam trade agreement set up between the four "sealed compartments" of Germany. That made the United States unpopular in Germany. From time to time Byrnes proposed a long occupation of the country, keeping the country split up and disarmed. The other day when he suggested twenty-five years Molotov said that wasn't long enough, so Byrnes, jumping at the chance to reach any agreement with Russia, said OK, forty years!

This was the time Molotov chose to spring his plan for a new Germany.

So long as Truman and Byrnes continue to kiss Stalin's [illegible] so long as they build their entire diplomacy around an all-out effort to appease, to please, to cajole the Soviet, so long as they continue to shift and reshape and concede at any and all points for the one "prize" of reaching an agreement with Moscow—the Russians will make us look foolish.

We will have to begin saying what we will do and what we won't do, and let Stalin take it or leave it.

Tree Battle Raging

A "Battle of the Trees" is being waged in London's suburbs between those who favor lopping branches and those who do not. Architects say excessive pruning is disfiguring the trees and being done at the wrong time of year. City officials embarked on tree lopping because householders complained the trees were shutting out the sunshine. Tree experts say the recent orgy of tree pruning is wanton vandalism.

Mary Morris Makes First Appearance at Woodstock Playhouse

Mary Morris, noted actress and director of the Woodstock Playhouse, will make her first appearance on the Playhouse stage this summer this week, when the theatre revives Elizabeth McFadden's gripping melodrama "Double Door."

One of Miss Morris' great Broadway successes, "Double Door" was first produced in 1933 at another summer theatre—Southhampton, L. I. The try-out performances established "Double Door" as a successful play. It was presented on Broadway in the fall, and ran well into the following spring. A road tour followed. The play was filmed by Paramount, with Miss Morris and Anne Revere playing their original roles before the cameras.

Miss Morris was one of the many now well known people associated with the Provincetown Theatre when that birthplace of contemporary American drama was revived under Eugene O'Neill, Robert Edmond Jones, and Kenneth MacGowan. Acclaimed for her work in "Fashion," Miss Morris was perhaps first marked by the playgoing public for her great performance as Abbie in O'Neill's "Desire Under the Elms." She has had many distinguished roles since then.

She was chosen by Leo Bulgakov to play Vassilissa in "At the Bottom" and the Actress in "The Sea Gull"; was seen as Nanine in Delos Chappell's production of "Camille" directed by Robert Edmond Jones; and, for the Group Theatre, played Mrs. Connelly in "The House of Connelly." Under Melvyn Douglas' direction she appeared with Lillian Gish in Sean O'Casey's "Within the Gates." After playing the lead in the London production of "Suspect," she made, with Anna Neagle, the English film, "Victoria the Queen." For the past several years Miss Morris has directed plays for the Drama Department of the Carnegie Institute of Technology, returning to the New York stage for such plays as Lynn Riggs' "The Cream in the Well."

Featured with Miss Morris will be Edith King, the aunt Lucy of last week's play "The Damask Cheek." She is well known for her many appearances with the Lunts, notably in "The Sea Gull" and "Amphytrion 38." More recently, she was seen in the role of Amelia in the Paul Robeson production of "Othello"; The permanent company will appear in support.

"Double Door" will be directed by Robert Gill, and will run through Sunday, July 28.

W.C.T.U. Holds July Meeting, Discusses Yale Alcohol School

The July meeting of the Kingston Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the home of Mrs. William J. Whiston. The subject for the meeting was "The Yale School of Alcohol Studies." It was presented by Mrs. John B. Steketee.

The Yale School of Alcohol Studies is a summer school and is now in its fourth year, students having attended from most of the states. Dr. E. M. Jellineck is its director. Mrs. Steketee noted that Yale University is spending as much as $100,000 per year on alcohol research. She quoted the school as saying "Science denies that there are intimate relations between alcohol and cancer, cirrhosis, tuberculosis, epilepsy, venereal and many other sicknesses." On the other hand Mrs. Steketee reported that Dr. Roch, porfessor in clinical medicine in Geneva, Switzerland, with 37 years of experience mostly as director of a clinic for inner medicine, proves that "alcoholism is the most important factor in morbidity and mortality in that country and apparently also in most lands of the temperate zone." She said, "It is difficult to understand why Yale's scientific literature is so contradictory to the findings of many eminent scientists of Europe."

Recent additions to the membership of the local union are Mrs. Ella Schoonmaker, Mrs. Elizabeth Conaro and Mrs. Hanry W. Bartsch.

Mrs. George W. Shultis, president, advised the members to attend the National W.C.T.U. convention, to be held in Minneapolis, Minn., September 19-24; and also the state convention at Rochester, October 10-14.

MISS ELSIE LORRAINE ANDERSON

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "Children Are People," etc.)

A quite unrealized but almost typical impulse of the families of young newlyweds is described in the following letter: "Both of our families display unceasing interest in how much we pay for everything we have and do. I don't object so much, but my husband doesn't feel that they have a right to pry into our personal matters. If you agree with him, won't you tell us how we can avoid answering? Neither of us wants to hurt their feelings."

In printing this letter I am hoping that it may be read by members of many families who, like your own, have no idea that their interest in you could be considered prying into your affairs. In other words, it is personal interest in you, rather than ordinary curiosity that is making them ask questions. If your husband realizes this, he may not mind their interest as he now does. Normally, too, as times goes on and you become settled, they will be less concerned. Meanwhile, the best way to avoid being rude by flatly refusing to answer is to develop a failing memory. As a matter of fact, most of us are uncertain about the price we have paid further than that we found it expensive or we thought it reasonable.

It Is Up to the Hostess

Dear Mrs. Post: What can be done about a hostess who never makes a move to leave the table? I have ended the sitting session several times by asking my husband, so she could not avoid hearing, whether he didn't have to leave for his appointment. I feel very foolish having to do this, but I haven't been able to think of anything else.

Answer: You might push your own chair back a little which may perhaps induce her to do the same. Otherwise, I find no better answer than your own.

Annuals Not Perennials

Dear Mrs. Post: When a magazine subscription is given as a present, is one expected to renew it when the original subscription runs out?

Answer: Definitely no! This would be a very bad precedent to establish, since comparatively few people would feel able to make such gifts perennial.

Annual Concert by Boys Choir at DeWitt Lake

The annual concert of the St. George Boys Choir of Newburgh, directed by the Rev. O. Roy Green, was given last night at the pavilion at DeWitt Lake.

The concert, which was their twelfth annual affair, was well attended, a large number coming from Newburgh, while the Girl Scouts attended in a body.

The concert was in the nature of a home-coming for the boys, most of the boys who had been in the service being present. Two, O. Roy Green, Jr., and Counselor Prang, boys who were active 12 years ago with the concert work, lost their lives in the war. The past week the Rev. Mr. Green received from the government his son's watch which had been found in his possession when he was killed. He was with the Patton Army and lost his life February 8, 1944.

The Prang boy was shot down in a plane over France the same year.

A Homing Vacation

"Floatin' down some lazy stream"
That is my vacation dream.
Pulling gently at the oars
Gazing idly at the shores—
Ah, that's what appeals to me;
A rowboat vagabond I'd be!
But the "battle-axe" has voted "NO;"
She doesn't like the way I row.
I cannot hope to use my car,
It wouldn't take us very far;
Because the tire treads are bare
And no money for gasoline to spare.
The old Gray Mare is out of date;
There is no ice on which to skate.
We need not plan a walking cruise—
We simply can't find our size shoes.
We're both too fat to ride on bikes,
So we don't mention 'cycle hikes.
Uncle Sam's boys deserve first place
For any extra railway space.
So, sizing up the situation
That exists in transportation,
We've decided not to roam,
But spend vacation time at home.

Undertaker—What am I to do with it?

Officer (having sense of humor)—Bury it, of course. You're an undertaker, aren't you?

Undertaker—That's true, but I thought it only right to come around and inform the relatives first.

Porter—Shall I brush you off, sir?

Passenger—Never mind. I'll climb off like the rest of the passengers.

Leaves From Boyle's Notebook

By RELMAN MORIN
(For Hal Boyle)

Paris, July 22 (AP)—On the record, the 21-nation conference which convenes in Paris July 29 probably will be designated as a "peace" conference, but this will be polite fiction, not a fact. The meeting will resemble, more than anything else, an inspection tour of a new house.

The architects who built the house are going to show it to the people who have to live in it. The architects themselves are not very well satisfied with the structure. As for the prospective tenants, whether they like it or not, they probably won't be permitted to charge it. They can complain, but they can't actually order any alterations.

The architects, in this case, have been the foreign ministers of the United States, Russia, Britain and France.

For months, they have been designing the treaties of peace with five erstwhile enemy countries, Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland. The drafts are ready now, at least as ready as they ever will be.

And so 17 other nations have been invited to send representatives to Paris to study them. They may not approve the treaties—and none of the four ministers approves them completely—but they can't order them out of existence. They can only suggest changes. Later, the Big Four may consider the suggestions, but they are under no compulsion to embody them in re-written drafts.

Hence, the Paris conference will not be another Versailles or a Congress of Vienna. It is just a preview of peace—or perhaps of further trouble.

Conference Is Compromise

The conference essentially is a compromise between Anglo-American ideas and those of Russia. It will give small powers a voice, an advisory vote, in the framing of treaties. But the Big Four have written treaties, and they will write the final drafts. It was the Russian idea that world peace depends ultimately on the four major powers, and the Russian argument has been that the treaties might just as well be written there and then, rather than in a full-dress peace conference.

The American and British position was almost exactly the reverse, at least in the sense that both championed the right to smaller powers to present objections and offer recommendations for changes.

Tactics as well as principles have played a part in all this.

The principle is a democratic world, in which nations large and small sit together like individuals, voting on issues that concern them all, directly or indirectly.

The tactic concerns what is generally conceded to be the Russians' fear of being outvoted in a general assembly—even though the individual Russian states of Byelo-Russia and the Ukraine have separate votes. That Russia has sharply different policies and plans for Europe than Britain and the United States is no longer in doubt. The Russians, mistakenly or not, are represented by close observers as being afraid of majority voting on most European issues.

The peace conference will be little more than a board of review. The 17 nations will review the drafts of treaties. They will suggest changes, undoubtedly, but the Big Four need not accept them.

The complications go even further. Only those nations that were officially at war with Italy, Romania, Bulgaria, Hungary and Finland will review the proposed individual treaties. Italy is the only nation with which the whole 21 are concerned. In other cases, only 12 and 14 nations will study the drafts.

When it is all over, the four ministers will go back to work on the final drafts. The other 17 nations will have been heard. While the final decisions will be made by the Big Four, the routes to these decisions will be mapped, in varying degrees, by what has been said and suggested and protested at Paris.

This will be the Paris peace conference, the new house that will be previewed. It probably will please nobody very much—but in politics as elsewhere, there's a housing shortage, too.

Poletti Denies Any Remarks to Sicilian

Elizabethtown, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Former New York Governor Charles Poletti denies that he told a Sicilian separatist leader that it was necessary to keep the Italian House of Savoy on the throne.

The former American military governor of Italy was quoted to that effect by Andrea Finocchiaro on the floor of the constituent assembly in Rome Friday night.

Poletti, in a telephone interview from his summer home here Saturday, said there was a "mistake" in the separatist leader's "recollection."

Du Mond Makes Plea For Accident Reduction

Albany, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Farm and Home Safety Week began today with a plea from the state commissioner of agriculture for a reduction of accidents.

C. Chester Du Mond said in a statement yesterday that 22,000 farm accidents in the state last year cost 170,000 man days of the working year.

No Dough for Bakers

The boys, members of an A.F.L. Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union on strike, are using their spare time to paint and repair their father's wholesale bakery—without pay. They draw $11 a week from the union's strike fund.

Nonchalant

Buffalo, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Three-year-old Michael Gress wandered away from his mother and was found about eight hours later, some two miles from the spot he had last been seen. Asked by police where he had been, the boy replied, "oh, here and there."

Jamestown, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Frank Jenner, elevator operator at the Hotel Samuels, observed on his 84th birthday that he has been in the "passenger business" half his life—first on the railroad, later on a trolley, and now on an elevator.

New York Political Forces Are Realigned

New York, July 22 (AP)—A realignment of political forces in New York city, with possible state-wide implications, was seen by observers today as a result of the endorsement of Democratic Mayor William O'Dwyer's administration by Alex Rose, vice chairman of the Liberal party.

Rose, who backed Judge Jonah J. Goldstein, Republican and Liberal candidate in last year's mayoralty campaign, said he came away from a dinner meeting with O'Dwyer over the week-end "very much impressed by Mayor O'Dwyer's determination to give the city a clean and progressive administration."

Rose said he and O'Dwyer had discussed the Liberals' recent nomination of U. S. Senator James M. Mead for governor and former Gov. Herbert H. Lehman for U. S. senator and had agreed the nominations presented the Liberal party and the mayor with common objectives in this year's state campaign.

In the last gubernatorial election the Liberals, who were then in the American Labor party, backed Dean Alfange for governor. Political observers estimated that several hundred thousand votes were lost to the Democratic ticket because the Democrats failed to nominate a candidate acceptable to the A.L.P.

Ostrom Hurls Fine Ball for Kingston Up to Blackout

Umpire Collyer Kayoed by Pitch as Stadium Darkens; 2,000 Fans Attend Game

A slick timing in coordination between the weatherman and the lighting system at municipal stadium Saturday night halted the bitter struggle between the Albany Senators and the Kingston Recreations in the bottom half of the eighth inning with the score tied at 2-all.

The threatened rain, which made its appearance before the game started, finally unleashed itself in that next to the last frame. With 2,000 fans enjoying themselves at one of the best games of the year, the rain let loose and almost at the same second the huge lighting system went dead when a cable burned out in the rear of the ball park. As the eighth inning had not been completed when the sudden mixture happened, the game was reverted back to the seventh inning.

Umpire Is Casualty

The sudden ending of the huge arclights nearly had a more serious result when Joe Wahl was at bat in the eighth. Woody Crowson had just uncorked a pitch to the plate when the lights dimmed. Both the batter and Ziemba, the Albany catcher, swooped out of the way but the pitched ball sailed through and nicked Jess Collyer, umpire-in-chief, in the side, at the waist. Collyer was taken into the dressing room and after a few minutes of rest and treatment he was okay.

Pitching Sparkled

Saturday's unexpected finish climaxed one of the finest pitching duels of the season at the uptown orchard. Billy Ostrom went all the way for the Recs and pitched excellent ball while Gebrian and Woody Crowson divided the mound chores for the Eastern Leaguers. Gebrian left after hurling the first three frames during which time he gave up one hit, a sharp single to right by Frank Bambara in the third which resulted in Kingston's first run.

The Recreations took a slim 1 to 0 lead in the third stanza after Ostrom skied to left. Bambara punched a line single to center and while Gentile was at the plate pilfered second. After the Rec second sacker grounded out to Rodgers, Bambara strolled to third and then romped home when Chet Ziemba gave his third passed ball.

Ziemba did his best to give Kingston a couple of markers in the first. A pair of free tickets to Gentile and Ristau were helped along with two passed balls by the Albany catcher but both Joe Wahl and George Pederson failed to come up with a hit.

Error Aids Rally

Ostrom, meanwhile, was pitching one-hit ball until the fourth and had nine straight batters until successive singles by Vic Barnhart and Lloyd Randol put the Poughkeepsie flinger on the spot. The loose southpaw induced Ziemba to hoist to Ashdown which ended the threat.

The Rec flinger had himself to blame for one of the Albany runs in the sixth. After Clark Henry was thrown out by Gentile, Bill Rodgers walked. Barnhart, the former Pittsburgh Pirate infielder, then smashed a vicious liner through the box which sailed to center sending Rodgers to third. A momentary bit of wildness then cost Ostrom a possible shutout. Barnhart, with Randol at the dish, made a mad dash for second. Ostrom wheeled and chucked the ball over second into center which allowed Rodgers to come in with the tying run. Lloyd Randol's screaming whack to deep center field which rolled up on the bank for a triple drove in Barnhart with Albany's second run.

Ostrom redeemed himself for that costly error in the seventh, however. With one away, Bill Shelly spanked a single to center and advanced to second on Motzer's infield bounder to short. Billy "The Kid" then dumped a single in short right which drove in Shelly with Kingston's second run.

In Kingston's half of the eighth Gentile fanned and Ristau reached first safely when Crowson dropped Rodgers' throw. Then with Wahl at the plate everything happened.

Press Box Jottings

...A number of great fielding plays were turned in again Saturday. Rodgers and Gebrian collaborated to rob Gentile of a hit in the third when the first baseman went on the grass between first and second to pluck Johnny's sizzler. A quick throw to first where the pitcher covered nicely did the trick...Joe Wahl and Billy Ostrom pulled off the same play in the seventh which nullified Henry's bid for a base knock...Vic Barnhart dazzled the fans with a beautiful play in the fourth when he dashed back of second to take Ashdown's hit away from him and then scooped the ball over to Cox who touched second for a forceout on Pearderson ...Jess Collyer had his lumps twice. In addition to getting hit in the dark, Collyer's toe stopped one of Ostrom's pitches in the sixth but returned to duty after shaking it off...Rodgers attempted to stretch his single into a double in the top half of the eighth but was cut down on a run-down between first and second. Ristau, after failing to make a shoestring catch of the fly, quickly threw to Gentile who juggled the pill for a second and then rifled it to Wahl who finally tagged out the runner... Manager Jimmy "Ripper" Collins was in the first base coaching box for the Albany Senators throughout the game and seemed to be giving Ostrom plenty of attention ...The Recs are still dickering for a game here against the Montreal Royals of the International League. Rec officials also are hopeful of booking another major league team before the snow flies ...According to spokesmen of the club there will be some Wednesday night games during the rest of the year...Threatening weather held down the crowd to exactly 2,000...It's off to Cape Cod now for this writer.

Better Golf

By SAM SNEAD

1. More problems present themselves in a putt than in any other stroke on the green. That's why you must practice. You have the roll of the green to consider, complicated by up-hill or down-hill roll, texture of grass and green condition—hard and dry or soft and wet. Let's first consider the up-hill putt. The only departure from normal putting form in an up-hill putt is that you should grip the clubhead more firmly than for normal putts. This helps to get the ball up to the hole and in case you miss, a foot beyond so that the hole has a chance. Average players are short on up-hill putts and too far over on downhill putts. Only practice will enable you to correct your judgment. With practice will come confidence and you must feel sure of yourself to putt accurately. In putting, after you understand the correct form recently outlined here, you are on your own. Nothing can help you but practice.

TED THE SLUGGER

The Scoreboard

By JACK HAND
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Thumping Teddy Williams is baseball's man of the hour — almost certain to be named most valuable player in the American League if the Boston Red Sox cop the big prize.

Adding 11 points to his batting average with one afternoon's effort on seven hits in nine times at bat, the sharp-eyed slugger is tops in batting at .365 and ranks first in runs scored, runs batted in, total hits and home runs. It's a good thing he never took up base stealing.

Williams hit for the cycle in yesterday's second game triumph over St. Louis, 7-4, topping a single, double and triple with his 27th home run.

A double and a brace of singles by Williams drove in one of the runs Dave Ferriss needed to record his 15th victory of the season by a 5-0 score.

Look Good for Pennant

Now 11½ games out front with 64 games to play, the Sox appear a certain bet to earn the pennant if they can manage a .500 pace.

Just when the Yankees were beginning to make some menacing gestures with five straight victorious nine-inning pitching jobs, they collapsed under an eight-run inning engineered by the White Sox in the second game. Floyd Bevens hurled and batted the home club to a 3-2 opening nod with his two-run homer off Ed Lopat but Chicago's anemic hitters climbed all over starter Al Gettel, Joe Page and Jake Wade for their biggest inning of the year and a 9-3 viredict.

Blow Chance

Detroit blew a chance to pick up ground on New York by losing to the Philadelphia A's 4-3 in the first of two. Even Hank Greenberg's 23rd homer with a man on couldn't save the issue. The world champs got even in the nightcap, slugging Lum Harris and two successors for an 11-7 edge in a game cut to seven innings by darkness.

Washington edged out Cleveland twice, 2-1 and 7-5, although the Tribe rushed Bobby Feller to the rescue in the finale.

St. Louis and Brooklyn continued to run neck and neck in the National, winding up respective [illegible] and road trips all even with 53-34 records. The Dodgers headed home to resume operations with Chicago and the Cardinals departed for the Polo Grounds to meet the Giants Tuesday. There are no games in either league today.

Howie Pollet threw a four-hitter at the Boston Braves in the first game but needed Stan Musial's two-run homer to defeat Johnny Niggeling, 2-1; Erv Dusak's circuit clout with two on eased Harry Brecheen's task in the 8-4 second tilt triumph over ex-Card Mort Cooper.

Coming to Life

Vic Lombardi and Hank Behrman recorded wins over Pittsburgh as the Dodgers continued to show encouraging signs of snapping out of their slump. With Ebbets Field ahead, the Brooks can be counted to make a race of it, at least through August.

Lombardi blanked the Bucs with three hits, the best mound job of the day, but Behrman required some bullpen help from Hal Gregg and an inside-the-park homer by Carl Furillo with a man on to sink the Pirates, 6-5.

Chicago set a new paid attendance record at Wrigley Field with a turnout of 45,615 but the Cubs could do not better than split with the Phillies.

Hank Borowy finally cast off his mates and worked a complete game, the first since May 5, in the [illegible] opener. Ken Raffensberger handed Claude Passeau his fifth straight setback in the 4-2 second tilt, with the help of Del Ennis' home run.

After Ewell Blackwell had whitewashed New York with five hits, 5-0, in the curtain raiser, the Cincinnati Reds succumbed to the slants of Long Johnny Gee, making his first start after a year's retirement. Gee picked up a 2-1 triumph on homers by Willard Marshall and Benny Warren. The split boosted the Reds into fourth place, a game ahead of the Braves.

Coaches and Officials To Talk Amateurism

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Some 30 of the nation's outstanding coaches and athletic officials from 16 conferences put their heads together in frank discussions today in an attempt to keep "the true spirit of amateurism" from being undermined by an "alarming trend" toward semi-professionalism in intercollegiate sports.

The representatives gathered in the offices of the Western Conference at the invitation of the Big Ten commissioner, Kenneth L. Wilson, who warned that the time has come when too many schools are seeking the boy instead of the boy seeking the school.

He believes a uniform plan should be adopted—not necessarily built around the code of regulations of any one conference—to rid college sports of "evil influences." The response he received showed that other conferences thought the time was ripe, too, and are willing to put their cards on the table during the two-day convention.

Wants Clarification For Zale, Graziano

Pompton Lakes, N. J., July 22 (AP)—Middleweight Champion Tony Zale of Gary, Ind., began tapering off today for his title fight with Rocky Graziano of New York in Yankee Stadium Thursday as one of his managers began a protest against the ring tactics used by the challenger in the past.

Sam Pian, co-manager of the champion, said he would appear before the New York State Athletic Commission at the weigh-in Thursday in an effort to reach an understanding before the fight.

"If the New York Commission wants a brawl or a street fight, Zale can give them that," he said, "but we don't want one set of rules for Graziano and another set for Zale."

Johnny Wood Says Ray Hale Rugged, Damaging Puncher

Heavyweight Duel Looks Like Sellout Here on B'nai B'rith Card at Stadium July 25

The shift from Pete Fuller to Ray Hale as opponent for Willie Champion has the Cleveland heavyweight's handler worried about his amateur pugilist's match Thursday night as the feature on B'nai B'rith card at the municipal stadium.

"From what I've heard, that Canadian lumberjack is not only a very rugged 190-pounder, but a stiff puncher," said Wood to Ben M. Becker, director of bouts, "and belongs in the pro ranks instead of fighting amateurs.

"I don't know whether I want Willie to box him or not," he added. It took considerable persuasion to make the match, but Wood finally accepted for Champion.

The midwestern champ who handed Jimmy Rouse, of Albany, now a professional, his first defeat in five years as an amateur has been more serious about his training since he heard about the Fuller to Hale shift.

"I know it'll be a tough match for me, but I'll do my best," he remarked.

Hale, who is boxing under the direction of George Lampshire, Buffalo fight manager who handles a string of professionals, is regarded as one of the hardest punchers in the upstate section, and a boy who can take it too.

"I never bother wasting time with a fighter who doesn't do his best in the ring," Lampshire told a Freeman reporter when he visited Kingston recently. This means that if Hale didn't have what it takes, he wouldn't be competing under Lampshire's direction.

Champion fought his way into the hearts of local boxing fans by decisioning Rouse, the soldier who won the C. B. I. army championship, outclassing such fighters as Bruce Woodcock the English pro. Woodcock has done a lot of campaigning against the best talent, including Tami Mauriello, who is matched with Joe Louis for the world's heavyweight championship.

Battle of Handlers

Thursday's card, for which more than 600 ringside seats have been sold to date, looks like a feud between George Lampshire, Buffalo's dean of boxing trainers, and Johnny Wood, the Cleveland coach who turns out Golden Gloves champions.

Along with Hale, Lampshire has three other fighters on the card, Chuck Cammota, middleweight; Jackie Thompson, bantamweight star and Columbus Lowman, one of the best welters ever developed as an amateur around Buffalo.

Johnny Wood will arrive here with Champion, Paul Simpson, 160-pound star, and Joe McNeill, Golden Gloves welterweight champion.

Here's how the full card looks:

Five Rounders

Ray Hale, 190, Buffalo vs. Willie Champion, 196, Cleveland.

Paul Simpson, 160; Cleveland vs. Chuck Cammota, Buffalo.

Jackie Thompson, 118, Buffalo vs. Carmine Virgilio, Poughkeepsie.

Columbus Lowman, 147, Buffalo vs. Joe McNeill, Cleveland.

Three Rounders

William Verhoek of Kingston, formerly of Rotterdam, Holland vs. Johnny Glass, Albany welterweight.

Charles Stanley, Newburgh lightweight vs. Roosevelt Jones of Albany.

Dave Hinkley of Poughkeepsie vs. Charlie (Clown Prince) Decker, 160, Albany.

Seat reservations may be made by phoning Kingston 5018. The first preliminary will start at 9 o'clock.

Byron Nelson Is Set To Clinch All-American

Chicago, July 22 (AP)—Byron Nelson, golf's golden boy—peeved at critics who claimed he cleaned up last year because the top stars were in service—today was poised to grab the 1946 cash-collecting leadership in the $50,000 All-American tournament at Tam O'Shanter.

Nelson primed for a crack at the $10,500 first prize offered in George May's All-American by roaring from behind to cop the $10,000 Chicago Victory National Open with a five-under-par 279.

The All-American merry-go-round which opens today with three days of qualifying competition for amateur, feminine and professional entries finds Nelson owning more than $19,500 winnings in six major triumphs, while leading money-winner Ben Hogan—who finished gar behind in the Chicago victory with a 286—has some $25,000 for eight victories.

In the Rough

By Charlie Tiano

The World-Telegram golf expert says it's almost 9800 to 1 against a hole-in-one in organized tournaments where selected players step up to the tee with the expressed intentions of sinking an ace, in five tries. His figures are based on several annual hole-in-one meets sponsored by his newspaper and open to all linksmen who have a certified ace to their credit.

The odds are longer than that in ordinary play—much longer—but they hardly compare with the 100,000 to 1 shot against Mr. Average Bowler in quest of a 300-score. Mr. Average Bowler shoots about 163.

The chances of a Kingston golfer firing an ace obviously are much better than those of a bowler shooting for 300. There have been 19 recorded golf aces compared with only three perfect bowling 300s in Kingston. And the number of games bowled exceed the total golf rounds by an overwhelming margin.

On the average course a golfer gets four chances to shoot an ace, if he plays the regulation 18. Every course is set up with a couple of par-3 holes. On the other hand the average bowler has 300 in sight, if he can get it, every time he starts a game.

The element of luck is an important factor in both cases. Deep down in the heart of every bowler and golfer there lurks the hope of a perfect performance. From duffer to the club champion, every time a golfer steps up to a par 3 hole, he's overwhelmed by only one thought. He wants an ace. Similarly we've yet to hear of a bowler who deliberately set out to get a spare in the first frame. The bowler or golfer who tells you he doesn't look for that perfect score or ace, is just kidding.

No Criterion of Class

Intriguing and soul-satisfying as they are, neither the hole-in-one or the perfect 300 is an index of championship qualities. Some of the nation's golfing hotshots have never scored an ace. The same is true among bowlers, although the percentage of perfect performances is higher among the pro bowlers than pro golfers. Gene Sarazen is one of the exceptions. The Connecticut farmer-golfer has five aces to his credit.

The hole-in-one registered at Wiltwyck this week by Roger Smith, New York musician, recalls that seven have been recorded at Tommy Danaher's domain. The honor roll includes Roy Vogt, Frank Shimek, Ray Le Fevre, Watts Bailey, Eddie Barnett, Charlie Roth and Roger Smith.

Twaalfskill has produced nine dream shots and if quantity is a criterion of class then Judge Cashin and Lew Hymes are out of this world with two each. Matt Herzog has the longest on record, a 277-yarder, while Major Hiltebrant, Dr. S. T. Levitas, Jack McCabe and James Dwyer also have negotiated the one-stroker.

Two women—Mrs. Matthew Hasbrouck, of Stone Ridge—and Mrs. Ernest Le Fevre, of Kingston—modestly admit to a hole-in-one.

Just in case you're interested, the 300 bowlers in Kingston have been Johnny Ferraro, Bob Hanley and Larry Petersen, Jr.

POWDER PUFFS—They say Rosemary Tremper was far and away the best female golfer this town has ever seen . . . We raided the Wiltwyck scorebox and noted such laudable efforts as Mrs. Jessie Burnett's 49-46 rounds, Mrs. Odell Black 48 Helen Trowbridge 47, Agnes Kennedy 52, Mary Hankinson 52 . . . Twaalfskill women will be hosts to a Ladies' Day Tuesday . . . Invitations have been sent to several clubs in the mid-Hudson area . . . A Mrs. Hallenbeck of Catskill is said to be the best female golfer in the district.

CHIP SHOTS—Sig Makofski, Schenectady golfer, cleaned up his third consecutive ENYGA tourney last week at Claverack . . . Wiltwyck made its best showing of the season . . . Dean Dykstra and A. J. Anderson finished one-two in Class B net, while Stan Winne and Frank Stone were fourth and fifth . . . Ray Le Fevre and Maurice Davenport tied for fifth place in Class B . . .

THE NINETEENTH HOLE—General Mills offers a case of Wheaties and a certificate to all acers . . . Mid-afternoon scene: Tommy Bashall trying to steal a suit of clothes from Al Heisman and Carlie Husta taking the pants off both . . . Carl had a 38 at the turn and Bashall and Heisman had worked themselves into a fine stew . . . A match for the championship of Pine Grove avenue is proposed between Bill Schaffrick and Jimmy Andretta . . . Who would win a 36-hole duel between Ernie and Ray Le Fevre? Both are listed at 11 handicap . . . Touring with the Hudson valley press, "Curly" Flemings, the visiting "pro" fired a 40 on College Hill's par-35 layout, first time he saw the place.

Marines May Sign Service Team Instead of Bertelli's

With Angelo Bertelli's Springfield team definitely out as the club to furnish opposition to the Kingston All Stars for the Ulster Detachment of the Marine Corps League, Sunday night, August 4, in the municipal stadium, Commandant J. R. Mayone announces that another team is being sought.

Andrew J. Murphy, III, a personal friend of Bertelli, having played football with him at Notre Dame and in the South Pacific on a marine eleven, said the grid and diamond star can't keep his date in Kingston because of a legal entanglement.

Will Be in Court

Murphy, who is booking the game for the marines, told a reporter that Bertelli will be busy in court around the time of the local game. "I know 'Bert' would be glad to help out Ulster Detachment, but it's impossible this time," he told a reporter.

The Los Angeles Dons of the All-American Football League are going the limit to prevent Bertelli from playing with Boston in the National League, Murphy advised. The grid star has signed contracts with both loops, he added.

There is a possibility that a service team will be brought in to oppose the All Stars.

Murphy has been promised by [illegible] Cahoton, former city judge, and star pitcher of the Old Colonials that he will serve as an umpire on August 4. Supreme Court Judge Harry E. Schirick probably will be one of his fellow officials and William "Pie" Murphy the other.

Kingston Lineup

The Marines have procured the following players to represent Kingston:

Catchers—George Zadany.

Pitchers—Charlie Neff, George Kaufman and Tommy Fisher.

First base—Jack "Daisy" Schatzel.

Second base—Andy Celuch.

Shortstop—Billie Tierney or Clarence Van Derzee.

Outfielders — Tommy Maines, Al Tiano, Jimmy Ashdown.

Utility infield—Carlino, Glasco.

Utility outfielder — Bob Carnright, Saxperties.

Tickets for the game, proceeds of which will go to the marine treasury for rehabilitation work, are selling rapidly according to Commandant Mayone, indicating a large attendance at the attraction under the arclights, starting at 8 p. m.

Durocher Says It'll Be Chicago

Predicts Tough Struggle for His Dodgers

Pittsburgh, July 22 (AP)—The St. Louis Cardinals may think they can overhaul the Brooklyn Dodgers in a National League stretch finish, but Bums' Manager Leo Durocher says they're not the least bit disturbing to him.

"See that team beating the Phillies," said 'The Lip' pointing a finger at the Chicago-Philadelphia results on the scoreboard in Forbes Field yesterday. "That's the team we'll have to lick for the pennant, and not the Cards. It's the Cubs, and brother they're much tougher."

Charlie Grimm's Cubs recently slammed the Dodgers in four straight games, although Leo, in typical Flatbush fashion, declares "we had 'em licked in three of the games."

Craft's Market Is Sold to Garment Firm of New York

of Westinghouse and other electrical appliances, Lowe Brothers paints for which he has the agency, and other lines of merchandise which will be added.

Merchandise Scarce

In making the announcement of his intention to retire from the grocery business, Mr. Craft said it was a case of "too much business and too little merchandise" to sell. Last year his business, in spite of the shortage of food stuffs, was one of the largest in volume in the mid-Hudson section but he said he had decided to close out the grocery business and "get away" from the grocery line which he has followed for 31 years, to devote his attention to the household appliance business which he has been conducting along with the grocery business. Mr. Craft said electrical appliances, scarce during the war years, were now beginning to come through in increased volume and he would announce shortly the location of the new appliance store.

While the new owner desires to take over the greater portion of the first floor immediately, Mr. Craft said he would move his stock to the front portion of the building and there continue to dispose of the stock. "We will be located here for some months until we dispose of our fixtures and liquidate the stock," he said.

An announcement of the sale of the stock of groceries and the fixtures will be made in the very near future through the columns of The Freeman, Mr. Craft said.

Mr. Craft and his father, the late E. S. Craft, were associated with the grocery business in Kingston for many years, conducting markets on Wall street and later entering the super-market field in Kingston and other eastern New York cities.

Camp Shanks Becomes Ghost Town Today

Camp Shanks, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—This huge staging area from which more than 1,300,000 Doughboys were cleared for overseas duty since it opened January 4, 1943, becomes a ghost town today with departure of 1,385 German prisoners for home.

During its operations 300,000 German prisoners of war came to Camp Shanks and either were stationed here or sent to prison camps.

It will be the last group of German P.O.W.'s to leave the country, following yesterday's shipment of 1,345 former Nazi soldiers.

But to many Americans Shanks was the final stop before going to combat areas. And to many others it marked the end of the war.

Two years after Shanks was opened it was shipping out 70,000 men a month. Only last October 90,000 men a month were clearing for return to civilian life.

McNierney Tells How Students May Get Farm Work

Makes Appeal for Young People to Sign for Agricultural Jobs During Summer

An appeal for school farm help has been issued by Joseph McNierney of Harwich street, field representative of the State Farm Labor Operations Committee.

Mr. McNierney has outlined the procedure for school children to work on farms as follows:

Any student of working age, interested in farming for the summer vacation period should apply for a work permit at the office of the board of education in Kingston High School or by 'phoning Mr. McNierney at 1928-J.

The board of education is open daily, except Saturdays, from 9 to 12 a. m. and from 1 to 4:30 p. m.

In order to secure permits it is necessary for students to have the consent of their parents signed on applications. They must also have birth certificates or other means of telling the date of their birth.

Birth certificates may be brought to the board of education office on Tuesday or Friday, between 10 and 11 a. m. at which time physical examinations will be given and work certificates issued.

Mr. McNierney became a field representative of the State Farm Labor Operations Committee on July 1 by appointment that came from Dr. T. N. Hurd of Cornell University.

Man Pulled From Creek Refuses To Reveal His Name

Police today still were seeking to learn the identity of the young man who was pulled out of the Rondout creek, at the foot of Hasbrouck avenue, at 12:30 o'clock this morning. The man, who was removed to the Benedictine Hospital, has refused to reveal his name or address to either the hospital authorities or the police.

The police shortly after midnight received a call from a man, who did not give his name, that he had pulled a man out of the creek and asking that the police send one of the radio cars to the foot of Hasbrouck avenue.

Officers Henry Ronnenberg and Joseph Myers responded to the call and brought the man to police headquarters, where he refused to talk. No identification papers were found on his person, and he was taken to the hospital.

The police say the man is about 25 years old, and was wearing brown clothing similar to army attire. The man, they said, was apparently normal but indifferent.

Later in the morning he was questioned futilely by Detectives Wesley Cramer and Clarence Brophy.

50 Killed When Bomb Explodes in British Quarters

Jerusalem, July 22 (AP)—A Palestine police communique said at least 50 persons were believed killed in the palatial King David Hotel, headquarters of the British army and secretariat of the Palestine government, when "terrorists" exploded a bomb there today.

Unofficial reports said about 60 were wounded by the blast which damaged the right wing of the hotel in which the secretariat was housed. Military headquarters were on the upper floor.

A cordon around the area prevented an approach to the scene.

The only American known to be injured was Richard Mowrer, New York Post correspondent, who was reported to have received a broken leg when hit by a falling stone as he was walking past the hotel.

Five assassins were said by eyewitnesses to have planted the explosive after shooting at a British officer, storming the hotel grounds and herding its employes against the walls.

Fire erupted after the tremendous blast, which shook the center of modern Jerusalem at 12:30 p. m.

A strict curfew was clamped on and traffic and pedestrians disappeared from the center of Jerusalem and other Jewish parts of the capital.

Shooski Admits He Told Untruth About Robbery

Sheriff Finds 'Missing' Man Sold His Car After Traffic Arrest Upstate

A story of assault, robbery and loss of memory which was told by Philip Shooski, 25, of 155 Prospect street on his return home after an absence of two days has turned out to be a pure myth, according to a statement which he made to Sheriff George Smith and Kingston police officers.

On Tuesday last Shooski left home in his Buick car to peddle vegetables in the East Kingston locality. He disappeared and was next heard from on Thursday when he returned home and told a tale of having been robbed of his money while changing a tire near East Kingston. He claimed he had been assaulted and after a lapse of memory came to on the Albany-Schenectady road on Thursday and then made his way home.

The police and Sheriff Smith began an investigation and when he named a place outside the city as the spot where he had been assaulted and robbed of his money by a man in a "yellow shirt" while he was fixing a flat, Sheriff Smith and his deputies took up the matter. Their investigation led to the fact that there had been a flat tire and a man in a yellow shirt but that happened the day previous. The trail also led out 9-W where it was found Shooski had attempted to sell his car and later how he had been arrested in Amsterdam for a traffic violation. That was on Tuesday and the same afternoon in Amsterdam he sold his car for $15 to a police officer when he was refused permission to operate the car when it was found he had plates on the Buick which had been issued to a DeSoto.

Faced with these facts he made a full statement of the matter and admitted he had not been robbed. A signed statement was taken by Sheriff Smith and County investigator Clayton W. Vredenburgh which includes a statement of his actions from the time he left Kingston until he returned home. The large sum of money which he contended he had been relieved of turned out to be a much smaller sum, in the neighborhood of $35 and that he had with him on the trip.

Gets Suspended Sentence

Frank Smith of West Pierpont street was arrested Sunday morning by the police charged with public intoxication. The arrest followed a complaint from the New York Central railroad authorities that a drunken man had nearly been struck by a train on the tracks near the Albany avenue bridge. This morning in police court Smith was given a suspended sentence.

INFORMAL CALLS

The doorbell rings at eight o'clock
It rings at three...and five
Within our walls, informal calls
Keep hopes and dreams alive.
It warms the heart to say "hello"
When footsteps tread the stone...
So much depends on treasured friends
And those we call "our own."

It may be Uncle Tom or Jack...
Kathleen...and George...and Ted
Perhaps it's Frank we have to thank
When humor breaks in flood.
There's room for all who happen in
To lend their bit of cheer
The rafters ring and joy is king
When all the gang is here.

Lena...Mabel...Andy...John
But why attempt them all?
Let's merely say they bless the day
When time permits a call.

Chinese Reds Say They Took 12,000

Allies and long friends of China, must be clearly told of this road to disaster," she said.

"They must be told that American reactionaries are teaming up with Chinese reactionaries, each encouraging the other. They must be told that the presence of United States armed forces on Chinese soil is not strengthening peace and order among the Chinese people.

"They must be warned that loans should be given only to a reorganized and truly representative Chinese government. They must be told that if America makes it plain that she won't supply munitions or military assistance there will be no spreading of the Chinese civil war."

Madame Sun's statement which some observers thought might mark her active reentry into Chinese politics, emphasized:

"We are threatened by civil war into which reactionaries hope to draw America, thus involving the whole world. Such a civil war, though undeclared, has already begun. This calamity must be stopped in its beginning.

"The present crisis is not a question of who wins—Kuomintang or Communist. It is a question of the Chinese people, their unity, liberty and livelihood. It cannot be settled by balancing armed forces or bargaining for this city and that territory. Not party rights but human rights hang in the balance."

'Y' Day Camp Enters Fifth Week at Lake

The Kingston Y. M. C. A. Day Camp at Pine Knoll, DeWitt Lake, today started its fifth camping week of the season with the largest registration of any previous season. There are 131 campers listed.

This week will be the banner week and much stress will be made towards the final week's action in all activities leading to age group championships in track and field, swimming and diving, teetherball, horseshoe pitching, ring-o-let, checkers, as well as the selection of the most popular boy and girl campers in the 1946 season.

A special feature this year will be the camp champion in the bubble gum contest.

This season many of the campers are learning to swim and Camp Director Lou Schafer, swimming instructor, expects more campers to pass the 25 yard swimming test than ever before.

It has been necessary this season, said Mr. Schaefer, to refuse registration to almost 75 boys and girls who desire to enroll. The camp will take care of 100 campers weekly, and with 125 to 135 campers each week, the space and leadership is heavily taxed.

Plans are being considered to enlarge the camping space for the 1947 season. Mr. Schafer said he was hopeful to have enough space to divide camp into a younger camp for children between 7 and 9 years of age, and another for those in the 10 and 14 year old group.

New campers this week are: Garwood and Ronnie Kline, Maurine Donnelly, Catherine Cassidy, Louis Modica, William and Peter Hellawell, Howard Marnorle, Allen Marcus, Annlouise Polisi, Delores and Emma Banks, Albert Speigle, Richard Mandell, Louis and Claire Kirschner and George Matthews.

sulted in the ouster of 20 party leaders as "reactionaries."

A few weeks ago Soviet Lt. Gen. V. P. Sviridov, ignoring the required routine of consulting American and British colleagues on the Allied Control Commission, ordered the Hungarian government to disband a group of organizations he accused of being "Fascist." On July 11, President Ferenc Magy, chief of the Small Holder Party, advised Sviridov he would meet the demand.

The organizations to be broken up are the Boy Scouts, a student union, three Catholic Youth groups and an organization similar to the Y. M. C. A.

The United States already has loged one protest based on Russia's action.

Officials said that in view of the Hungarian experience and the firm hold Russia appears already to have established over Romania and Bulgaria, it may be a long time before the political guarantees expected from the Paris peace treaties become real to the Balkan peoples.

Nations. The council has four applications ready for action—from Albania, the Mongolian people's republic (outer Mongolia), Afghanistan, and Transjordan.

Siam also has applied for admission but action on her application is being held up until it is formalized. There is a possibility that the application might be ready by the Wednesday meeting.

The principal fight likely will center around Albania. Britain has not yet recognized the government of Premier Enver Hoxha, of Albania. The application is sponsored by Yugoslavia, with Russia in the background in favor of it.

Still another matter awaiting council action is the request by Siam for a settlement of her frontier dispute with France over parts of Indo-China.

New Pearl Harbor Probe by Senate Will Be Re-opened

Patterson reported an investigation had developed no indications that the conduct of Wyman or Rohl "contributed in any way to the Pearl Harbor disaster." Patterson added that "discliplinary action is not justified."

While the Mead Committee inquiry into the Wyman-Rohl case promised to be the first new investigation of any phase of the Pearl Harbor incident, the possibility that congress might review the findings of the joint committee was not discounted.

Brewster, who once suggested that "it might be necessary for a Republican congress to finish the job," said that if G.O.P. members win control of the House in this year's election he would not be surprised by demands for a new inquiry.

Ferguson Doubts Hearing

However, Senator Ferguson (R-Mich), who joined with Brewster in a minority report naming President Roosevelt as among those they felt should bear part of the direct blame, said he foresaw no try at a new hearing "now or in the near future."

Rep. Keefe (R-Wis) who signed the majority report subscribed by eight of the 10 members of the Joint Committee, said in an appendix:

"This investigation has not brought to light all of the facts about Pearl Harbor. We have been denied much valuable information."

Keefe complained specifically that former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson did not answer some written questions submitted to him and "he has also denied to the committee his diary entries for the days December 2 to December 6, 1941."

The committee majority, headed by Democratic leader Barkley (D-Ky) praised the "ability and foresight" of President Roosevelt and his top cabinet members, laying most of the blame for the Pearl Harbor surprise on military leaders in Washington and Honolulu.

But Brewster and Ferguson held in their separate report that:

"The President of the United States was responsible for the failure to enforce continuous, and appropriate cooperation among the secretary of war, the secretary of the navy, the chief of staff, and the chief of naval operations, in evaluating information and dispatching clear and positive orders to the Hawaiian commanders as events indicated the growing imminence of war."

They agreed that military leaders must share in the blame.

Most of those mentioned in the reports withheld comment immediately.

At Dallas, [illegible] Walter C. Short, army commander of Pearl Harbor at the time of the attack, said he was satisfied "that the testimony presented at the hearings fully absolved me from any blame."

Stimson said at Huntington, N. Y., that he considered the majority findings "a very fair report."

Two other Republicans joined the six Democrats on the Senate-House Committee in the report to Congress.

This majority recommended changes in military methods ranging from unity of command in the field to elimination of "brass" walls between commanders and their subordinates.

Senators Brewster and Ferguson concluded in their minority report that the committee's six month investigation had shown "the failure to perform the responsibilities indispensably essential to the defense of Pearl Harbor" rests upon the late President Roosevelt and:

Henry L. Simson, former secretary of war; the late Frank Knox, former secretary of the navy; Gen. George C. Marshall, former army chief of staff; and Admiral Harold R. Stark, former chief of naval operations.

Majority Says

The committee majority said:

"The committee has found no evidence to support the charges, made before and during the hearings, that the President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War or the Secretary of the Navy tricked, provoked, incited, cajoled or coerced Japan into attacking this nation in order that a declaration of war might be more easily obtained from Congress.

"On the contrary, all evidence conclusively points to the fact that they charged their responsibilities with distinction, ability and foresight in keeping with the highest traditions of our fundamental foreign policy."

Brewster and Ferguson along with the majority, said that a share of the blame for the surprise element in the fleet-shattering attack must go to the Hawaiian commanders, Maj. Gen. Short and Rear Adm. Husband E. Kimmel. The majority attributed this to "errors of judgment and not derelictions of duty," the latter an offense that might be subject to court martial action.

Truman Offered Difficulties

President Truman put difficulties in the way of the inquiry by permitting only committee counsel to obtain documents from departments and barring individual committee members from exploring the files, they said Secretary Stimson didn't answer all of the questions put to him, adding that the committee didn't get many messages exchanged between President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill.

"The whole question of whether or not it would have been possible to avoid war by proper diplomatic action and thus avert the Pearl Harbor tragedy was left largely unexplored," they contended.

They said former Secretary of State Hull "bears a grave responsibility for the diplomatic conditions leading up to the eventuality of Pearl Harbor" but conceded he was not a "relevant link in the military chain of responsibility stemming from the commander in chief to the commanders in Hawaii for the defense of Pearl Harbor."

Spoke of Developments

The majority held on the other hand that Hull "fuly informed the War and Navy Departments of diplomatic developments and, in a timely and forceful manner, clearly pointed out to these departments that relations between the United States and Japan had passed beyond the stage of diplomacy and were in the hands of the military."

The majority report, asserting that officers in Washington and Hawaii "were adequately informed of the imminence of war," said:

"The disaster of Pearl Harbor was the failure, with attendant increase in personnel and material losses, of the army and navy to institute measures designed to detect an approaching hostile force, to effect a state of readiness commensurate with the realization that war was at hand and to employ every facility at their command in repelling the Japanese."

Seven Failures Specified

The report accused Short and Kimmel, the Hawaiian commanders, of seven specific failures:

"To discharge their responsibilities in the light of the warnings received from Washington * * *.

"To integrate and coordinate their facilities for defense and to alert properly the army and navy establishments in Hawaii * * *.

"To effect liaison * * * and to exchange fully all significant intelligence."

"To maintain a more effective reconnaissance within the limits of their equipment."

"To effect a state of readiness throughout the army and navy establishments designed to meet all possible attacks."

"To employ the facilities, materiel and personnel at their command, which were adequate at least to have greatly minimized the effects of the attack * * *.

"To appreciate the significance of intelligence and other information available to them."

At the same time, the majority criticized the navy's Washington intelligence division and the War Department's war plans division for their handling of intercepted Japanese messages, particularly the one which told Tokyo's envoys to deliver at 1 p. m. Washington time, on the December 7, 1941 attack day, a final diplomatic ultimatum.

In major recommendations, the majority asked for unity of command in the field, integration of inteligence services, abolition of statutory handicaps to American intelligence work and tightening of anti-spy legislation.

Producers, Dealers to Meet

Albany, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Milk producers and dealers who supply the metropolitan New York market were to meet today at the state office building to determine a price to producers for August milk. The meeting was called by State Agriculture Commissioner C. Chester DuMond who asked for the session to meet the emergency created by the end of subsidy payments when O.P.A. lapsed last June 30. A voluntary agreement was worked out for July returns at a similar conference earlier this month.

To Recall Freeman

Washington, July 22 (AP)—The Senate war investigating committee announced today that Joseph Freeman, Washington agent for a midwestern munitions combine, will be recalled tomorrow for questioning about reports that he attempted to influence a witness in the war profits inquiry.

Chinese Strangled

New York, July 22 (AP)—George Seyang, 55, Chinese, was found strangled to death today in a small room in the rear of his laundry at 203 East 17th street, police reported. Police said the laundry had been ransacked and the pockets of Seyang's clothes turned inside out.

Burned Critically

New York, July 22 (AP)—Mrs. Florence Hense, 70, was burned critically today as the result of a fire in her bedroom at the Park Plaza Hotel, police reported. She was taken to Knickerbocker Hospital.

a single definite lead has yet been uncovered.

A few months ago it was rumored that a large Toledo, Ohio, concern was setting its sights for Kingston. Assuming that the nationally known Toledo Scales Company was involved, the Chamber of Commerce contacted company officials and received a quick reply that Toledo Scales was definitely not contemplating setting up a plant in the east.

Ford Rumor Persists

The rumor that the Ford Motor Company would consider a local site after establishing a branch in New Jersey has existed since before the war. Inquiry brought out the information that Ford was not interested in Kingston.

General Motors always is a possibility, Chamber officials pointed out, but to date the local group has not had any official correspondence or negotiations with G.M.C.

The presence of a high Nash-Kelvinator executive in Kingston has led certain people to believe that the company eventually would seek a location in Ulster county, but the executive in mind has never even remotely considered such a move. It is understood that he makes his home here and operates a large farm on the Flatbush road but has never indicated that Kingston is in the running for a Nash-Kelvinator location.

The same can be said of the rumors about Chrysler moving into the area. A top Chrysler executive makes his summer residence in Woodstock and it is a coincidence that Chrysler announced recently that it was moving a large part of its plant from Detroit to Chicago.

Chamber officials said that if any major automobile concern ever settled here, it would more than likely be Chrysler since that company is in the midst of a general expansion policy with a new type car. But as yet, they pointed out, there has been no word from any automobile concern relative to an Ulster county location.

Robertson to Confer

Berlin, July 22 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Brian Robertson, deputy military governor for the British occupation zone, was expected to fly to London today to consult with his government on an American plan which would permit economic fusion of the British and American zones. Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, U. S. commander in Europe, announced yesterday that American experts had roughed out tentative plans for an economic merger with any one or all three of the other occupation zones in Germany. The proposals were presented to representatives of Britain, Russia and France over the week-end.

Bread Like System

London, July 22 (AP)—Britain's bread rationing program, criticized by both bakers and consumers, receives its first major test today with the reopening of stores following the Sabbath holiday. Although rationing became effective yesterday, so few stores were open that sales were negligible. The average adult will receive nine ounces of bread daily, with heavy workers receiving as much as 15 ounces.

Storm Causes Death

Newark, N. J., July 22 (AP)—Severe electrical storms over the week-end caused the death of one person, injuries to two others, fires and damage to buildings, and interrupted power service in many parts of New Jersey. A bolt which struck the side of a Bradley Beach house fatally burned Harriet Nelson, 20, of the Bronx, N. Y., whose clothing caught fire as she watched the storm through a bedroom window Saturday night.

Rockwell Kent Withdraws

Ausable Forks, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Declaring he did not want to split the opposition to incumbent Congressman Dean P. Taylor, Troy Republican, Rockwell Kent, artist, author and farmer, withdraw today as American Labor Party candidate for Congress from the 33rd New York District.

Chinese Say Search For Marines Violation

Tientsin, July 22 (AP)—The Chinese Communist radio at Yenan today warned United States Marines that a search of Communist-held territory for seven marines seized in North China July 13 was a violation of Chinese sovereignty.

The warning was made at a time when there were indications, not confirmed by the Marine Corps, that the seven have been found in a village 50 miles southwest of the port city of Chinwangtao.

Yenan radio said that unless the Leathernecks called off the hunt they must assume full responsibility for any clashes between Marines and Communists.

The marines, however, said they had ceased the widespread search for the seven, captured by a band of 80 armed Chinese in a small village 22 miles southwest of Chinwangtao while going to buy ice. Although the corps would not confirm reports the seven have been found at the village of Lotinghsien marine sources did say that a special team was preparing to leave for that village.

automobile and appliance dealers.

An end to O.P.A.'s maximum average price regulation by which it sought to force production of low cost clothing.

Less than half the $2,051,000,000 in subsidy payments the administration asked.

A requirement that in establishing maximum prices for wholesale or retail distributors of manufactured articles or agricultural products, O.P.A. shall allow "the current cost of acquisition of any commodity, plus such average percentage discount or markup as was in effect March 31, 1946." This eliminates a large part of O.P.A.'s cost absorption program whereby retailers were required to absorb a part of higher manufacturing costs.

A stipulation that while the act is retroactive to June 30, "no act or transaction occurring subsequent to June 30 and prior to the date of enactment of this act shall be deemed to be a violation" of the Price Control Law.

U.S.E.S. Places 63 Jobs Here During 10-Day Period

Job placements by the United States Employment Service during the past ten days totalled 63, including 22 veterans of World War 2, George J. Stanton, manager of the Kingston office, said today.

The office recorded 1,054 reception contacts during the same period. The number included 617 vets and 141 females.

New job applications totalled 73, of which [illegible] and 28 World War 2 vets. Referrals amounted to 156, with 88 veterans and 36 females.

The labor turnover has not been exceptional during the past few days, Stanton said. The next big demand is expected to come from Local 17, which controls the labor supply at the Merriam Dam in Lackawack. At the present time the project is moving slowly but a heavy order for men is anticipated within the next few days.

The $2 increase in daily wages for brickyard workers has not materially affected the labor supply and virtually every brickyard still needs men for jobs paying a minimum of $10.20 daily.

Two new members were added to the U.S.E.S. office staff during the past week, Francis Johnson of Kingston, a World War 2 veteran with five years experience in army personnel work, has been hired as an interviewer. Miss Mary Bohan, also of Kingston, has been added to the clerical staff.

Sheriff Says Man Confesses Shooting

Broome County Tragedy Involves Veteran

Port Crane, N. Y., July 22 (AP)—Broome County Sheriff Earl J. Daniels said early today that Mrs. Mildred Horton, 38, had been found dead of bullet wounds in her apartment and that her husband had told authorities had done the shooting.

Daniels said that officers went to the scene after receiving a telephone call from Harold Horton, 36, in which, Daniels said, Horton told him he had "murdered" his wife.

The sheriff reported they found the body in the kitchen with four bullet wounds from a .38 caliber pistol. He said Horton surrendered after making the telephone call.

Broome County District Attorney Robert O. Brink and Daniels said that a charge would be filed against Horton later today, but did not indicate what the charge would be.

Daniels said that he had been informed that the Hortons had engaged in an argument after Horton had left his work as a guard at the Link Corporation at nearby Hillcrest and reutrned home after making one round on his tour of duty which started at midnight.

The Hortons have three children, Harold 12, Irene 9, and Jane, 4.

The father served with the armed forces in both the European and Pacific theatres during World War 2, Daniels said he had been told.

Roosevelt Wins California Test

Late President's Son Is Committee Chairman

Sacramento, July 22 (AP)—James Roosevelt, former marine colonel and eldest son of the late President, assumed his duties today as chairman of the California State Central Committee to which he was elected after a strenuous contest in the committee.

Roosevelt won the fight in the caucus of the Southern California delegation by a 200 to 107 vote over Thomas Scully, Los Angeles Democratic leader. Earlier in the contest there were as many as eight candidates for the post in the field.

By California law the state chairmanships are rotated biennially between the north and the south and through precedent, the choice of the section of the state which is entitled to the office is accepted by the entire state committee.

Roosevelt was supported by Will Rogers, Jr. Rogers termed Roosevelt's election as "significant far beyond the mere state chairmanship. It represents the strengthening of a central core of the Democratic party and will be, I hope, a body blow to Left Wing, Red Fringe groups."

Mc Narney Accepts Russian Assurances

Berlin, July 22 (AP)—Gen. Joseph McNarney, U. S. European theatre commander, said yesterday he had accepted Russian asurances that U. S. officers, missing since July 4, are not being detained in the Soviet occupation zone.

McNarney also declared he did not believe the pair—Capt. Harold Cobin of New York city and Lt. George Wyatt, of Oklahoma City had met foul play. The two officers vanished after reportedly leaving on an unauthorized trip into the Russian occupation zone.

Christopher Columbus became a sailor at the age of 14.
